

Colour in the Balance

Mary took great care on her home and looking after her guests. Plant, flowers, pictures and soft music

The guest home was not big but nevertheless required attention. She made sure the hall was welcoming and guests could hang up their coats and store their bags.

There was a colourful and we'll stocked cloak room and two chairs for guests to relax and take off their shoes.

The living room was about 40 square metres with a TV / sitting area for eight and a playing / computer area with a table, iMac, Nexus and workspace for laptops including plug-in facilities.

The host had set up several playlists, which guests could choose from and there was a range of boardgames.. The room had a natural partition, including a fireplace.

Mary's had the attic, which had been converted with a study, ensuite and a square 16 metre bedroom.

The first floor had three ensuite double bedrooms. A blue, green and yellow room with a timeless corridor with landscape and still-life prints.

The heart of the house was the kitchen. Mary had plenty of work surface and baking facilities, including a bread maker and a large eating table with a nice view.

Her aim was always to provide nutritiously good looking meals with a mix of textures, balance, aromas and colour. She had an impressive herb and spice rack to add flavour and zest to the plates!

To round off the experience Mary had a garden with a vegetable patch separated by flower-beds and a hedge. There were a few fruit trees and a rest area with two hammocks and dedicated hand carved benches.
